ST. ANDREW'S TO HOST NINTH ANNUAL AGELESS—REMARKABLE SAINT LOUISANS GALA

Wells Fargo Advisors to serve as Presenting Sponsor of the event, which will honor area individuals who are redefining retirement

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 14, 2011... We've all heard the old saying that age is nothing but a number, but today the adage is ringing truer than ever before. As the face of aging continues to change, more and more seniors have decided that retirement is no reason to slow down as they travel the world, embark on new careers, lend a hand in their communities and offer their talents and expertise to their favorite charitable organizations. The 2011 class of Ageless-Remarkable Saint Louisans is no exception, as each honoree embodies the active and engaged spirit that is being embraced by countless numbers of older adults nationwide.

Ageless 2011 honoree Jean Woodard embarked on a new career at age 53 when she completed her nursing degree. Today, at age 90, she continues to care for patients as a hospital emergency room volunteer. At 75, honoree Eleanor Gershien earned the distinction of being the oldest person ever to receive a degree from Maryville University. And, following a 55-year career as a beloved professor with the St. Louis University School of Medicine, Dr. Paul Young is now working on the third edition of a neuroscience textbook and helping to update interactive computer programs used worldwide. Meanwhile, 76-year-old Rev. Donald Hunter remains pastor of New Sunny Mount Missionary Baptist Church and continues his work with The Acts Partnership, an organization he helped found that works to stabilize troubled neighborhoods through the development of affordable housing and community programs. For 77-year-old honoree Jesse C. Swanigan, work continues on bridging the gap between people of different races and religions through his efforts with the 100 Black Men of America organization, which he founded to provide mentoring for young men and help improve the quality of life within communities across the U.S.

These incredible individuals are among a group of 20 older adults that will be recognized at the St. Andrew's Resources for Seniors System's ninth annual Ageless – Remarkable Saint Louisans gala. St. Louis-based Wells Fargo Advisors is the Presenting Sponsor for the special event, which will be held Nov. 6th at the Hyatt Regency St. Louis at the Arch.

Ageless – Remarkable Saint Louisans is the primary fundraising event for St. Andrew's and its Charitable Foundation. Gifts to the foundation support the provision of housing and supportive services to low-income and at-risk seniors in the St. Louis area, as well as the extension of financial aid to residents who have exhausted their resources. Each year, the organization serves over 5,000 people and provides more than $1.5 million in charitable care. Sponsorships are still available, and tickets are on sale for $175 per person, and may be purchased through St. Andrew's by calling (314) 726-0111. Event RSVPs can now be made via the St. Andrew's website at www.standrews1.com.

St. Andrew's initiated the Ageless—Remarkable Saint Louisans concept in 2003 with the production of a one-of-a-kind photo book featuring the first year's honorees. The program has gained popularity, and its unique and creative approach was recognized with the Innovation of the Year Award in 2004 by the American Association of Homes and Services for the Aging, and the 2007 Distinguished Service Award by the Missouri Association of Homes for the Aging.

Created in 1961, as a non-profit partnership of the Episcopal Diocese of Missouri and the Presbytery of Giddings-Lovejoy, St. Andrew's is non-sectarian, faith-based and an expert at serving both older adults and their caregivers.
